To whom it may concern,

This is to confirm that I have had Christina Self come out to my school (Alta-1 Mullaloo) for the last 3 years to run the Baby Think It Over Program. She is booked to come in again this year. The students, who participate in this program, are both boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 19. Most of these students take electronic babies home and learn how difficult it is to deal with a crying baby.

The program is very effective, with many of the students feeling exhausted after two nights, and vowing to not have children until they are older and more mature.

A second part of the program is the sex education, which is well received by the students. Christina is a confident, articulate and well informed presenter and the students appear very interested in her sessions.

I certainly would recommend this program to other schools, as it is a reality check for teenagers who might be galmourising the idea of having a baby.

Kind regards
