To Whom It May Concern

I have worked in partnership with Christina Self in the delivery of a suite of programs that provides psychoeducation to students around the realities of young parenting including:

- Baby Think It Over – a simulated experience of parenting
- Talking Realities – an interactive presentation provided by peer educators (young mothers themselves)
- Sexual Health

The partnership was supported by Panorama Health Network, UnitingCare West and the Department of Education over a 3 year period. Each year we would receive between 45 and 55 school bookings for the program. At the time I was the Manager of Community and Youth Services at UnitingCare West.

The program was highly regarded by the participating schools with repeat bookings each year. The evaluation and feedback by staff and students was very positive.

Yours sincerely
